Red Dead Redemption Pc Skidrow RarPassword.Q: What does the number represent in the Python multiprocessing/multiprocessing_shared.py file? To me the __main__ and the First, Second, Third, and Fourth Main functions look like they could each be subprocesses (some of which could run in parallel), but does the number below each function represent some sort of process number? def First(self, item, desc): def Second(self, item, desc, linecount): def Third(self, item, desc, item_count): def Forth(self, item, desc, state_count): self.__main__ = First self.__main__.__name__ = "First" self.__main__.__doc__ = "Easy first function to call" if __name__ == '__main__': self.__main__(First(), "First") if __name__ == '__main__': self.__main__.start() if __name__ == '__main__': self.__main__.join() If there's any easier way of calling the multiprocessing method, let me know. A: The number is the process id of the process which calls the function. The multiprocessing module automatically creates a pool of worker processes, and the process id is the index of the worker process within that pool. If you do a fork of the multiprocessing module, you can see what the value is via the id() builtin: import multiprocessing import pprint if __name__ == '__main__': print pprint.pprint(multiprocessing.active_children()) HMCS Sackville (K142) HMCS Sackville was a that served in the Royal Canadian Navy during the Second World War. She served primarily as a weather ship in the Battle of the Atlantic. She was named after Sackville, New Brunswick. 6d1f23a050
